The internationalisation and collaboration project began alongside the launch of the Erasmus programme, and we have taken part in the programme's development ever since. Our internationalisation policy is ongoing and involves all of our students. More specifically, with regard to the internationalisation of student mobility:

- Student mobility is compulsory in all programmes (study and/or work placements): our programmes are designed so that our students can spend a semester or a year abroad, either studying or on a work placement.
- The importance of languages: all of our outgoing exchange students receive language classes, and we pay close attention to their level.
- Courses are taught in two tracks, English or French, at identical levels and with identical content, so that our English-speaking and French-speaking students, as well as exchange students, can study in the language of their choice.
- The internationalisation of our faculty and administrative staff: international mobility opportunities through Erasmus teaching and staff exchanges. Each year we are committed to promoting this opportunity, which enables our lecturers to establish contacts at various European universities and to enrich their research and teaching methods. Likewise, our administrative staff benefit from the different working practices that can be shared during these visits.

Internationalisation and partners:

- Qualitative development of our university partnerships (particularly with accredited partners) whose mission, values and research positioning are consistent with those of our Institution, and, for our existing partners, through an annual evaluation process.

Internationalisation and teaching:

Each year, we offer a series of events and conferences involving lecturers from our partner universities, business leaders from our partner companies and administrative staff, on topics of educational interest for the internationalisation and professional development of our students.

- These days, known as 'Global Mindset Days', give students the opportunity to explore topics that complement their courses or that build on the curriculum of the visiting lecturers' programmes.
- 'Exhibition Fairs': an exhibition designed to inform students about different cultural regions, our partner universities and international work placement opportunities.

Internationalisation and information:

- Bilingual information for European and international students on the intranet and website, together with essential practical information: course catalogue, accommodation, health, banking, transport and catering.
- A dedicated Erasmus+ web page (general information, a copy of the Charter, accommodation, visas, insurance, etc.) in accordance with the conditions of the Erasmus+ Charter.
